A UNIQUE RESPONSIBILITY

The world of volunteering has a unique responsibility. It is a space for encounters, the exercise of citizenship, mutual growth, and offers a real opportunity for relationships, not just service.

THE KEY MESSAGE

- People with disabilities are not just recipients of help, but can be protagonists and active resources if adequately welcomed, trained and supported.
 - They are partners for change: from people in need to people who help others.

TRAINING PATH OBJECTIVES

• Raise awareness among local organisations about the value of inclusion.

TRAINING PATH OBJECTIVES

- Raise awareness among local organisations about the value of inclusion.
- Provide concrete operational tools to involve volunteers with cognitive disabilities in their organisations.

TRAINING PATH OBJECTIVES

- Raise awareness among local organisations about the value of inclusion.
- Provide concrete operational tools to involve volunteers with cognitive disabilities in their organisations.
- Promote a shift in perspective: from "a fragile person to support" to "a person capable of contributing and helping others in turn".

FROM STATED TO GENUINE INCLUSION

"It's not enough to say 'we want to include'. You need to know how to do it."

Inclusion cannot be improvised.

It is not a symbolic gesture, but a path that requires awareness, tools and responsibility.

FROM STATED TO GENUINE INCLUSION

Helping a person with a disability become a volunteer means first and foremost to get to know them, understand their strengths, and create contexts where they can truly contribute.

Only in this way does inclusion become real, authentic and transformative.

CONCRETE ACTIONS TO FOSTER INCLUSION

• Map existing experiences, coordinate and disseminate good practices at local, national and European level.

CONCRETE ACTIONS TO FOSTER INCLUSION

- Map existing experiences, coordinate and disseminate good practices at local, national and European level.
- Introduce support and mentoring paths, inspired by the TEAM IV model, which provides for the presence of a trained volunteer mentor to facilitate involvement.

WHY INVOLVE BUSINESSES

Involving the productive world means opening new scenarios for the future of inclusion.

Businesses can be not only suppliers of goods and services, but places of relationships, experience and work.

MEANINGFUL RELATIONSHIPS FOSTER TRUE RECOGNITION AND INCLUSION

Only if a person with a disability is visible as a customer, can he also become visible as

FROM RELATIONSHIP TO EMPLOYMENT

In the future it will be easier to hire a person who you know today, who works in your store, and frequents your spaces.

Relationships come before job inclusion.

INCLUSION AS A HUMAN SKILL

Inclusion requires planning, training and ongoing support.

- Building authentic relationships
- Creating truly accessible environments
- Recognizing the uniqueness of each person
- Facilitating active and sustained participation

In a time of great transitions – environmental, technological, demographic – the concept of Corporate Social Responsibility goes beyond philanthropy or the publication of sustainability and ESG reports:

it requires an active and structural commitment to building inclusive communities.

CONCLUSION: INCLUSION IN THE AGE OF AI

Artificial intelligence today accelerates responses, optimizes processes and opens up new possibilities. But it is human intelligence that continues to ask the right questions, imagine visions, design authentic relationships and accompany change towards paths of meaning.
